NEBRASKA PEOPLE WILL VISIT STATE

Dairyland Tours to Wisconsin Dairy Counties Becoming Popular.

(By Associated Press.)
Appleton, Wis.—One hundred and fifty Nebraska dairy farmers will invade Wisconsin to inspect the most highly developed dairy state in the world, from Sept. 27 to Oct. 4, according to O. H. Liebers, manager of the Nebraska Dairy Development society.

Coming by special train arranged by the Nebraska society and the Wisconsin Agricultural college, the farmers from the southwest will make their initial stop in Appleton, on Sept. 27. The party will tour through the Fox river valley, the following day in automobiles provided by local organizations. Waupaca will be the next destination of the party. Waupaca county will be the scene of inspections on Monday, Sept. 29. From Waupaca, the visitors will go to Oshkosh.

On Tuesday, Sept. 30, the dairymen will tour Waubesa county, known for its Guernsey and Ayrshire herds. The remainder of the week will be spent at the National Dairy show in Milwaukee, where hundreds of butter cattle will be on display.

The Nebraska party is one of several similar parties coming from the southwest and southern states to Wisconsin during the dairy exhibition.

From Michigan too, Green Bay, Wis.—More than 200 Michigan farmers, members of the Upper Peninsula Development association, will tour Wisconsin on their way to the National Dairy exposition at Milwaukee, Sept. 27 to Oct. 4, according to reports received here.

The farmers will be in Green Bay on Sept. 26, according to J. N. Kneen, business agent of the Wisconsin Dairy Development society. On Sept. 27, a visit will be made to the farm of Albert Tamper, near Mills, Wis., where the center of the dairy industry is located. On Sept. 28, the party will visit the farm of Wm. H. Morrison, first superintendent of Farmers' Institutes in the state; P. H. King, noted inventor and sales worker of the early days of the Wisconsin institution; W. F. Vilas, late representative of the University; W. H. Howell, former dairyman and founder of Howell's dairyman; and Mrs. Adda P. Howell, Farmers' Institute worker.

On account of the long service of Tamper to the dairy industry, and his fruit production promises to be a very happy event. Many of the men now prominent in educational and industrial lines received their instruction at his hands and are planning on attending the function which, while not a reunion, it is hoped many former students of the famous dairyman will be able to attend.

RAILROAD STARTS SUIT TO RECOVER $1,000 RENT MONEY

Papers were served Wednesday in a suit by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway against M. E. A. and H. E. Green, operating the Green Tobacco company, Janesville. Property owned by the railroad company was leased to the defendants, according to the complaint, in 1915 and the lease expired in 1923.

The suit is to collect $1,022.97 and 6 per cent interest, alleged to be due the plaintiff corporation for rent of the property. The complaint was filed by the Nolan firm of attorneys. An action to quiet title was started in the circuit court by Edward Seewald, J. H. Blackett et al. on land in Spring Valley township.

PREDICTS A GOOD MARKET FOR HOGS
Prediction that 1924-25 will be a good year for the sale and marketing of hogs is made by Clarence Croft, Evansville, Ind., breeder of hogs in southern Wisconsin. Croft declares that every market condition points toward a good price for pork.

"There does not seem much of a chance to have a sound corn crop. There is not much old corn and all corn is high," declares Croft. "Hogs have only 72 per cent of the normal number of hogs and this can be taken as indicative of the shortage all over. This shortage is especially true of breeding stock and in Wisconsin, believe the ratio is even more reduced than Iowa. I do not look for high speculative prices, but good, sound prices on which Wisconsin breeders and hogs can make a profit. We have got the edge in Wisconsin for the reason we can feed dairy by-products and cut down on high priced corn. And corn is what regulates to a marked degree the hog price."

The Evansville man could see no reason why pork prices should sag for at least a year.

KEENAN PUTTING GRANT CO. ON MAP BY ACTIVE WORK
Lancaster, Wis.—Winning first place among county exhibits once at the state fair is something to crow about, but taking first prize two years in succession is a feat hard to beat.

Grant county folks are mighty happy these days because "The Jefferson of Wisconsin" duplicated last year's winning exhibit and again brought back the coveted banner and the Milwaukee Journal cup.

The success of the Grant County booth does not lie on the shoulders of one man," says J. H. Keenan, county agent of the southwestern section, "even the person that brought an unusual one simple has credit to it."

Keenan had the active cooperation of 12 Grant county people in arranging the exhibit and helping materially in other ways.

Everybody in the county was behind the work of singing the exhibit, and to acquaint the visitors at the state fair with the advantages of the county, the Grant county bankers financed the printing of 25,000 bulletins in which facts and figures of Grant county were pictured in words and photographs.

The Greatest Birthday

This day, September 17, 1924, is the 157th anniversary of the birth of the constitution of the United States. What had been formulating in the mind of man for centuries as a set of governing principles, became a reality. The vision of a thousand patriot heroes, the hope of a million or more who had died at the hand of tyranny, the imprisoned thought of leaders suppressed by military autocrats and degenerate dolsa sitting on thrones, here found expansion in words and plucked the fruit of Liberty for a free and peaceful people seeking for happiness in homes untroubled by the sole right of might.

There is nothing divine about the constitution. There is nothing sacred in fact, but the intimate associations with the results of the operation of the constitution have made the document something far more than a mere abstraction. There are no complications about this constitution. It is easy to read. It has been quite easy to understand. It is a contract between three parties—the people, the states and the federal government which now party of the third part the constitution created. It sets forth the rights of each of these three contracting parties, directs what they may do and what they shall not do. It tells how far the states may go in relation with each other and how states may not infringe on certain specified rights guaranteed to the people as individuals and the relations of the Central government with both state and people.

The constitution was not made for a group or a class or a bloc. It was not made for any particularly favored few. It was written for all who live under its terms within designated boundaries of states constituting the nation. It deals with the individual first of all. It provides how laws may be made and by whom, how they shall be executed and by whom and then, as an umpire, sets up a court to decide when the rights of either of the three contracting parties have been encroached upon. That court in 137 years has decided 48 times that the rights either of states or the individual have been infringed and hence, as an umpire, it has declared the invasion of the rights not in accordance with the constitution.

The court in the sole, final protector of the people. Without it the most interested party to the document would be without protection. And, on the other hand, when hundreds of laws have been attacked and attempts have been made to override them, the court has said that they were according to the letter and purpose and intent of the contract, and the supreme body has stood again for the protection of the people. Mobs and crowds do not think. The mob or crowd is led by impulse or swayed by trivialities of the moment. Individuals think, and it is for the protection of that individual in his rights expressed in plain unmistakable language in the constitution—rights which made him fight and gamble all his possessions and against which he placed his life—that the supreme court was created as the interpreter.

It is proposed that we have a national convention for the purpose of changing the constitution. The reason given is that changing times make a newer document for the republic a necessity. What change? Shall we abridge or repeal the right of free assembly, of religious worship, of free press, of making a man safe from quartering troops in his home in time of peace, of trial by jury, or other protections written therein? Why not call a convention to change the Ten Commandments and the Beatitudes? Shall we repeal the Golden Rule or debate whether it is not out of date?

Under this constitution there have been more things accomplished for the well-being of humanity than was accomplished in any thousand years of the world's existence before its adoption.

One hundred and thirty seven years ago today the nation stood uptight at the door of tomorrow. Yesterday had been dark and dreary. Poverty was everywhere, money was almost unknown, life was primitive and filled with uncertainty. No use now to recite what happened after that first birthday. It is here all about us, in home, in school, in every place we go—the Spirit of America. And that Spirit shall not be destroyed by some untried theory fostered in enmity and advocated by those alien in thought if not in fact.

Mr. Davis is a hard man to follow. He said he was in favor of the stand Charles Bryan took about Defense Day and then at Cheyenne gave the republicans fits for not having a better and bigger navy.

Cole Blease, King of Pardons

Mr. Cole Blease is back in politics. He has been nominated for senator in South Carolina after a long wait and a continued effort. Mr. Blease acquired a bit of cheap national notoriety while he was governor of South Carolina. His outburst "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman, who was suave, had poise, was a gentleman outside of the political field and withal a pleasant companion. Blease was nothing of the kind. His sole claim to fame was the use of the power of pardon. A grimalt sent to the penitentiary was evidence that the courts and juries were wrong. So he pardoned them all regardless and for the asking. Once he was walking through the state prison, saw an old negro who looked badly and Blease called him over, wrote on an envelope, "Pardoned, Cole Blease, governor." Blaine in Wisconsin, small in Illinois and other governors may have issued pardons, but none of them were equal to Blease. He was a fighting governor. He had personal quarrels with most all of the state officials and scores of others in the state. He resigned as governor 5 days before his successor who defeated him was inaugurated so that he, Blease, would not have to be present at the inauguration and aid in inducting the new governor into office. What a team Magnus Johnson and Blease will make! What a joyous place the United States senate will be with a Blease!

NEW RAILROAD KINGS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington—Two young real estate operators of Cleveland, Ohio, have shown the world that the day of American railroad kings is not gone. Martin J. and Otto J. van Sweringen, brothers, who started making money in Cleveland real estate and then bought a railroad with their profits are the heroes of a modern romance which reads like fiction.

Not content with this, they then proceeded to pile railroad on railroad until they now have the third largest system in the United States. They bought the Nickel Plate and the Clover Leaf. They bought the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Hoeking Valley. They bought the Erie and the Two Marquette. Some smaller lines were also absorbed and now it only lacks final approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission to fuse into one giant transportation system, a group of lines which only a few months ago were independent railroads and some of them not doing very well. The result has been greatly enhanced credit for the system and each constituent part thereof. To be sure one strong reason for this is that it generally is understood that J. P. Morgan and Charles F. Baker, two of the greatest financiers in New York, are backing the young men. Nevertheless, regarding genius of an order not recently seen in the American railroad world, is recognized as the moving spirit of the consolidation.

Commodore Vanderbilt operated a ferry boat from Staten Island to Manhattan Island a century or so ago. His was a small venture and it was more as a joke than anything else that the people he ferried over in his small craft nicknamed him Commodore. But that was his pathway into the big business. From boats he branched out into railroads the days when they constituted a pioneer industry.

Jay Gould was a junk dealer. He bought and sold scrap iron and ultimately extended his operations into the buying of the iron of which railroads are made.

James J. Hill was a farm boy but he went to Minneapolis to work in the grain business and soon developed a small boat line for handling his trade. From this grew his mammoth transcontinental system which opened up an empire.

The pathway of these railroad kings is diverse and there seems to be no general rule by which to find it but it generally is found that the real estate business marks a new avenue.

Rumors exist to the effect that the van Sweringens intend to buy a transcontinental railroad which, hooked up to the large system they now control, will provide a route under one management from the Atlantic to the Pacific. At present there is no such railroad. The term transcontinental merely extends from the Mississippi Valley over the plains and the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast. If the report concerning the intention of the van Sweringen brothers be true, they will have the first real transcontinental railroad system.

The achievement of the Cleveland real estate operators seems to have ushered in a new era of railroad consolidation. The law now permits consolidations under certain circumstances but little progress has been made until this year. The success with which the van Sweringens appear to be meeting has stimulated other efforts. There now is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission the application of the Southern Pacific Company to take over the El Paso and Southwestern. This consolidation would affect Arizona and New Mexico and, to some extent, Texas. There seems to be no opposition to the plan, the public service commissions of the states are all expressing in support of the proposal. It is a deal involving some $50,000,000 and the Southern Pacific said the permission is granted and the absorption completed. It will spend from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 in further construction.

Another recent case is that of the consolidation of the International and Great Northern, a Texas railroad, and the Gulf Coast Lines. It is planned further to consolidate these with the Missouri Pacific. This will provide a large system, serving the Lower Mississippi Valley and the broad empire of Texas and even extending into old Mexico.

There will be one sharp difference between the modern railroad kings of the van Sweringen type and the old ones. The old ones built the railroads through new and undeveloped lands and across the frontiers. The present generation is merely taking the lines which others produced and moulding them into more efficient transportation systems.

A Vanderbilt constructed, James J. Hill completed, as did Collis P. Huntington and some of the other old time magnates. There appears to be little demand for extensive railroad construction in these days. The United States has 250,000 miles of railroad, more than any other country in the world and, in the opinion of some observers, is overbuilt. That may be true of some sections but untraversed regions are yet to be found. However, the day of such projects as the Union Pacific, the Great Northern and such great construction jobs seems to be over. The task now will be rearranging and connecting up the existing facilities and this is what the managers of the consolidations are doing.

The new era of railroad consolidations probably would have begun earlier but for the Sherman law. E. H. Harriman worked in much the same way that followed by the van Sweringens but he did not have his free hand. Charles Mellen attempted extensive consolidations in New England, but he too stepped in a stopped him.

After Federal control of the railroads, Congress took the view that economy and efficiency suggested the desirability of permitting consolidation and the law now provides that lines may consolidate provided the Interstate Commerce Commission approves. This has reopened the pathway to great railroad manipulation. It is probable that had E. H. Harriman lived he would now be in the forefront of the railroad men arranging new systems.

The opinion is held by many railroad executives that within a few years there will be only about twenty railroad systems in the United States instead of about 400 as at present. Some of these are small lines, but about 175 of them are good sized systems. Those would be absorbed and consolidated and in the process weak roads that were not serving an economic function would be abandoned or reorganized and connected up with other properties so as to increase their utility and value. There is a growing belief that a new railroad era is at hand and that the next decade will see substantial changes. In no other way, it is declared, can the public receive the full measure of transportation service required to keep abreast of industrial and commercial developments.

If we want to utterly destroy the value of the courts as a part of our system of government, let us have a few more Caverlys. One judge like Caverly will do more to make mob rule than anything the politician can do in a score of years.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

DISCOURAGED, and I bowed
My head and sought to shun the crowd
And fling my care away:

"Thought I 'They laughing drink their wine
And have no heavy grief like mine,
No sorrows, night or day."

I stood upon the curb of life
And watched them pass, the smiling wife,
Her husband at her side, and
Mothers and children trooping by.
It seemed in all the world that I
Alone was heavy-eyed.

"They know not what it means to weep,
Said I: 'They walk with faith and hope
Where I can only creep and grope,
They laugh at toll and care;
Not one of them has ever felt
The end of storms of trouble pelt,
None has a scar to wear."

"Look closer," said a voice within.
These, too, have seen pale death come in,
These, too, have loved and lost
These, too, have seen their hopes go down;
One passes now, too great to frown,
Whose soul is tempest tossed."

I looked, and near a cripple came,
His eyes with joy of life aflame,
No hint of pain he gave,
"If he who suffers all the while
Has courage in his heart to smile
Can you not be as brave?"

"None passes by your door today
Who has not trod a rugged way
Or felt the lash of fate:
All these who seem so free from woe
Have each some secret sorrow show.
Can you not be as great?"

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1924

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day. Although the Sun is in benefic aspect early in the morning, Mars and Neptune are strongly adverse.

If there is anything in astrology, then there must be much agitation regarding military and naval matters.

It will be remembered that predictions have been made regarding efforts toward preparedness and now there appear signs of definite crystallization of sentiment.

This should be a fairly favorable away under which to place oneself in educational connections and college students should benefit.

Strangely enough women appear to be much in eclipse at this time and subject to subduing influences.

It is foretold that in politics old methods of procedure will be victorious, notwithstanding many reform efforts.

Astrolgers have long predicted that this country is to go through an upheaval that will bring about great changes.

Inasmuch as the pope at Rome has the Sun in square to Jupiter his authority will be subject to protests. His health may suffer this autumn.

Neptune culminating in Mars on the lower meridian will help responsible for troubles in eastern Europe.

Persons whose birthdate it is need not worry about business which should be prosperous in the coming year.

Children born on this day may be rash and headstrong, but fortunate in business undertakings. Jobbers, contractors and builders often develop under this sign.

A MAGISTRATE WAS DEFIENT.
The other day a citizen got into a taxicab marked "lowest rate," and asked to be taken from One Hundred Twenty-fifth street to an address on West One Hundred and Fifty-third street.

"The driver started off in the right direction, but made several errors and when he stopped the meter showed $4. The fare tended to $1.20, that being the legal rate for the distance traveled.

"If you don't come across with $2.80 more I'll take you up before Freddie House," declared the driver, indignantly.

"You know Magistrate House," of the traffic court, well, then?" asked the fare mildly.

"No," said the taxi driver, "and he'll fix you." The fare motioned to a policeman.

"What can I do for you, Judge House?" asked the officer.

"That's about all there is to it, except that the driver changed from a bundt to a suppliant and late this night a woman and three children appeared at the judge's house to see him for 'not taking daddy's license away.'—L. L. Stevenson in a New York Letter to the Detroit News.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

"The benefit derived from improved calcium metabolism in cases of asthma, hyperasthetia, rheumatism and hay fever, is receiving more and more recognition. As I have explained in former talks, scientific investigations of the blood have shown that there is a lowered calcium content in these disease conditions. It is not ways enough, however, to take more calcium in food or in medicine. Although that does seem to bring considerable relief in many cases, it is probable that there is some peculiar deficiency in the capacity to metabolize or utilize calcium in most such cases, and this functional deficiency must be taken into account. Physiology teaches that the parathyroid gland controls in some way the metabolism of calcium in the system. Experience teaches that the administration of small doses of parathyroid extract along with some form of calcium brings about improvement in the diseases mentioned, when perhaps calcium alone fails. And as the thyroid and parathyroid functions are intimately related, some physicians maintain that minute doses of thyroid extract in conjunction with calcium treatment will accomplish the same result."

A British physician reported last year that he was able to obtain excellent results in the treatment of other diseases which is characterized, like those mentioned, with more or less periodic seizures, with calcium lactate. At the first warning of the approaching attack of migraine (periodic headache) the victim takes 30 grains of calcium lactate in most cases, and subject to migraine should keep on hand some tablets of calcium lactate, which should be fresh. It does not take three times a day over a period of two or three months in the year.

The dosage of calcium lactate for the hay fever, asthma or hyperasthetia subject is smaller, say five grains, but this should be taken three times a day over a period of two or three months in the year.

What amount or form of parathyroid or thyroid gland extract one should take along with the calcium lactate is a question for the medical adviser to consider. But the experience of taking calcium lactate alone has shown that, at any rate, whether it does any good or not.

Occasionally a dose of calcium lactate in tablet form proves irritating to the stomach. If so, it should be broken up to a powder and taken in water.

Small doses of calcium lactate are a question for the medical adviser to consider. But the experience of taking calcium lactate alone has shown that, at any rate, whether it does any good or not.

State Tells How Factory Fires May Be Stopped

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

"No smoking" rules should be strictly enforced. Daily cleanups should be made and fireproof rubbish bins installed in factories, department stores and public places. The Wisconsin Industrial Commission has issued a bulletin, received by Fire Chief C. J. Murphy. Attention is called to disastrous factory fires suffered in Sheboygan, Milwaukee, Oshkosh and Janesville, with a warning that cooperation of everyone connected is necessary in order to make Wisconsin factories safe from fire.

"What do factory fires mean to the city, the owners and the workmen?" asks the commission.

"In 1923 Sheboygan had two factory fires with a loss of approximately three million dollars. This gave to the city the unenviable reputation of having the largest per capita fire loss of any city in the country. The following year Milwaukee had a factory fire with a loss of about one and one-half million dollars, and so a relatively large per capita loss. In 1922 and 1923 Oshkosh and Janesville had large fires, unduly raising their per capita loss.

Fortunately, these fires were not accompanied by loss of life, but the probability of a factory holocaust is always there. Let us not forget the Triangle shirt waist factory fire and the I. C. C. building fire.

"The factory owner loses valuable customers, his trained employees, often books, drawings and other departments, as well as for the workmen a family unemployment and loss of wages.

"With the certainty of unduly large losses in factory fires, and the ever-present probability of a holocaust, this class of buildings should have the special attention of the owners and the municipal building and fire departments.

"Factories must not be built to burn. Fire-resistant building materials should be used in their construction, large floor areas subdivided by standard fireproof partitions, the operations will permit, standard fire doors installed, vertical openings closed up, the exposure hazard reduced to the minimum by the use of standard fire doors and windows, dangerous manufacturing processes isolated, explosives, inflammable and combustible property stored in fireproof buildings, standard fire extinguishers, and proper fire protection provided.

"Most of these recommendations apply to old buildings of the factory class as well as to new.

"Even a fireproof factory is never fireproof and ample, safe and unobstructed exits must be provided. Daily cleanings-up, standard fire extinguishers, and proper fire protection provided.

"The building department, the fire department, the private fire company and the owners must cooperate and bring about needed changes and safer conditions. Let us have a united drive for factory safety. It means the saving of precious lives and valuable property."

AMERICA has again gone to the fore and established further athletic supremacy this year. Last Saturday, the Yankee Davis tennis cup trophy was successfully defended, the trophy for the fifth straight year, defeating the Australian team decisively. On Sunday, the United States golfers defeated the British invaders and retained the Walker golf cup that was won from England several years ago. Tuesday, they stepped out and took the international polo trophy from the quartet of English players, making it two straight games, and keeping the cup in this country once again. It has been a great year for Americans and proves that there is no denying going on in the physical characteristics of the nation, it is not in your Uncle Sam's hand.

A MAN up in Green Bay has invented a device that he claims will save the fingers and the wrists of bowlers from soreness and strain. It is described as two aluminum fingers, their inner ends fitted with chrome-steel sleeves, their upper ends joined to a coiled spring and pivoting on another aluminum piece. The fingers fit over the bowler's fingers. He attaches the device to his wrist, inserts his metal-covered fingers in the holes of the ball and keeps the spring in the palm in the center of the ball comes to the bottom of the forward swing, the hand presses the spring and the ball is released.

THE EASTERN newspapers are contradicting themselves in regard to a possibility of Harry Williams, conqueror of Luis Fierro, meeting Jack Dempsey. In one paragraph, the services say quite forcefully that Williams demonstrated last Thursday that he is not a scientific enough nor a strong enough fighter to be a contender for the title. In the next, they say that it would be a good thing to match Williams against Jack Dempsey and then see if he is any good on an opponent for the King of the Ring. In the third, they say that it would appear that public sentiment is being worked up again along the lines of conjecture in order to build up a big house. The fight game, particularly when it comes to the big boys, is based on arousing the imagination of the fans and keeping it at high pitch so that they will be eager to go into paying with their shekels.

DIAMOND SPARKLES

A new act in baseball's big revenue promises to sustain interest until the final curtain of the season. The dance of the dancing worms was presented Tuesday by a chorus which included the Cardinals, Reds, Phillies and Athletics. The Browns and Indians were also billed for the act but the former were delayed by rain and the latter missed their cue. The Cardinals scored the biggest hit of the day by smothering Brooklyn under a 12 to 3 score, which dragged the Holins another half game away from the Giants and nearer the Pirates. Cincinnati collaborated by putting a double header with the Cardinals, losing the first game, 5-1, when the leaders bunched hits off Max, and winning the second, 3 to 1. The fourth game was a double bill with the Pirates. One big inning in which Cooper was touched for seven hits and six runs, the first game, 6-5, for the Cardinals, who came back strongly to win the second, 12-7. The Giants are still two and one-half games ahead of the Pirates, who are now only one game behind Brooklyn. While the Yankees watched the only at St. Louis, Washington took a half game lead in the race by beating Cleveland, 10 to 3, and winning the eighth, allowing five hits and five runs. Eddie Hume held Detroit to seven hits while his mates batted out 14 runs, a record. The White Sox three home runs full gave the White Sox a commanding lead which developed into an 8-4 victory. The Cubs won twelve from Boston by score of 6-2 and are going into fourth place. Jacobs held the Braves to five hits in the first contest.

Yankee Polo Players Gallop Over British

Win 14 to 5; Lacey Stars for Losers

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

New York—American and British polo players who participated in the series for the international challenge cup, retained by the United States, will split up and play on different quarters in the games for the open championship and for the Monte Waterbury, which will be contested this month.

Louis Lacey, Argentine, who started at back for Great Britain in the two games will appear Thursday at in a national polo league. The club of Los Angeles, holders of the national junior title, in a contest which will replace the third of the series scheduled between the two countries by Great Britain, which will not be played.

Remarkable Player.
The Argentine captain of the British team, Lacey, who scored five goals in the second and final game of the international series, which American won Tuesday by a score of 14 to 5. The fact that the English displayed a much more substantial quality of resistance and far better team play than the score indicated, was due largely to Lacey's spectacular use of his arms and mallet on defense and to his uperring aim and strong hitting in getting the ball out of danger and on its way into scoring territory.

Tommy Hales, who scored five of the American goals, carried the brunt of the American offense and baffled the crowd with his usual fearless horseanship and loic hitting. J. Watson Webb, stopwatch number one, who was opposed by Lacey, engaged in an afternoon's duel with the British Argentine and came out without a scratch.

The Prince of Wales witnessed the contest and participated in the ceremony after the game when the challenge cup was presented to the big four by Major General Hildard.

For example: a purchase of 50c to $1.00 entitles the purchaser to fifty votes; a purchase of from $1.00 to $1.50 entitles the purchaser to one hundred votes; a purchase of from $1.50 to $2.00 entitles the purchaser to one hundred and fifty votes, etc. No ballots will be given with purchases smaller than fifty cents. Banks will give 1000 votes for every new account opened, regardless of the amount.

The Votes Are to be Given With Cash Purchases Only

The ballots are then deposited in ballot boxes in any of the Janesville banks, The Bower City Bank, The First National Bank, The Merchants and Savings Bank, The Rock County National Bank, or The Rock County Trust & Savings Company. There is also a ballot box in the Gazette office.

Ballots will be counted daily and the candidates' standing announced through the news columns of the Gazette.

Competition is bound to be keen! This is going to be the most enthusiastic popularity contest that has ever been staged in Southern Wisconsin. Thousands will watch every copy of the Gazette for latest news of this whirlwind contest.
